Interim Healthcare offers senior care and personal home care, or non-medical personal care. Services can include, but are not limited to, assistance with activities of daily living (bathing, grooming, dressing, feeding, hygiene, toileting); meal preparation; transportation; light housekeeping; medication reminders; laundry; and more. Service can include companionship and socialization.

These services may allow individuals to stay independent and avoid moving out of their homes. Services can also be utilized as a source of respite for the primary caregiver.
